Talking To Your Child About Alcohol and Drugs Is an Ongoing Dialogue

Teens are confronted with many risky temptations that may have a far-reaching effects on their future and their health. Every child -including yours- is at risk for substance abuse as early as middle school. More than 25% of Massachusetts 8th graders have reported using alcohol and nearly 12% have used marijuana. According to Massachusetts Dept. of Public Health publications: A person who starts drinking before age 15 is four times more likely to develop alcoholism than someone who delays drinking until age 21; the longer you can post-pone the age of first use, the safer your child is likely to be.

Marijuana is more potent than it was even ten years ago; marijuana use can lead to serious mental, emotional and social issues.

Heroin can kill even after one use and it is extremely addictive; in 2003 there were over 36,000 admissions into heroin treatment programs in Massachusetts.

Inhalants can cause permanent brain damage or death, even on the first use.

In 2003, 28 percent of Massachusetts teens said they had ridden in a car with the past month with a driver who had been drinking.

Teens who drink have higher rates of fighting, riding with a drunk driver, carrying a weapon, attempting suicide, engaging in risky sexual behavior, using other illegal drugs, and being victims of sexual assault.

Although communicating with teens is often challenging, ongoing communication with your teen can make a difference in preventing substance abuse. Research has shown that teens who learn anti-drug messages at home are 42% less likely to use drugs, and 33% of teens who do not use drugs say the reason they do not is concern about losing their parents' respect and pride. Talking about alcohol and drug issues cannot guarantee that your teenager won't make a mistake, but through talking with your teenager often and thoughtfully, you are providing guidance for making responsible decisions.

When talking with and listening to your teen, do so without judging.

Discuss the physical effects and potential legal consequence of using drugs and alcohol.

Set clear limits and know where your child is and whom he/she is with; follow through with consequences if your teenager doesn't abide by the rules.

Stay involved with your child's life and spend time alone with your child.

Be a role model, not using illegal drugs and never drinking and driving; if you drink, do so in moderation.

Encourage your child to spend several hours a week on a combination of community service, sports, art, music, drama and/or clubs.

Be involved in your child's academics, attending school events and letting your child know you value education.

Develop family expectations and rules that indicate that it is not okay for children to drink, use inhalants, or drugs. Share your reasons for making these rules, and the consequences for breaking them. Make it your family's policy for your teen to call you for a ride, no matter what time of day or night, if a driver has been drinking or using drugs.

Despite your best efforts, your teen may develop a substance abuse problem. If your child exhibits warning signs, such as slurred speech, change in appearance of eye pupils, sudden weight loss, sudden psychological changes like aggressiveness, hostility and lying, or social changes such as a drop in school attendance and grades, or you find drug paraphernalia, seek help. Contact United Behavioral health (Commonwealth Indemnity and Navigator by Tufts Health Plan members) or your health plan for assistance.

Handling medical emergencies this summer. This may save a life if we can remember these three questions!

Is it a Stroke?

Sometimes symptoms of a stroke are difficult to identify. Unfortunately, this lack of awareness can spell disaster. The stroke victim may suffer brain damage when people nearby fail to recognize the symptoms of a stroke. Now doctors say a bystander can recognize a stroke by asking three simple questions:

Ask the individual to smile.

Ask him or her to raise both arms.

Ask the person to speak a simple sentence.

If he or she has trouble with any of these tasks, call 9-1-1 immediately and describe the symptoms to the dispatcher.

After discovering that a group of non-medical volunteers could identify facial weakness, arm weakness and speech problems, researchers urged the general public to learn the three questions. They presented their conclusions at the American Stroke Association's annual meeting last February. Widespread use of this test could result in prompt diagnosis and treatment of the stroke and prevent brain damage.

Teenagers, How about becoming a volunteer this summer?

I can't think of a more rewarding experience at which to spend your summer than to come to the aid of a needy organization/group. It may be a personally rewarding experience and it could lead to an interesting topic on which to develop a college application essay. VolunteerMatch, where volunteering begins, has a web site which contains 37,62 volunteer opportunities and 39,992 organizations in need of volunteer help. The entire listing is geographically divided and easily accessed. It is made possible by The David & Lucile Parkland Foundation. The web site to be accessed is www.VolunteerMatch.org

Recognition Nomination Awards The Wendy's High School Heisman Scholarship Athletic Citizenship Selection papers are being sent to high school principals, guidance directors, and athletic directors. Each year Wendy's Old Fashion Hamburger Restaurants team up with the NASSP (National Association of Secondary School Principals) and the Downtown Athletic Club to honor both male and female high school scholars-athletes. Students who participate in a varsity or individual and team sports are eligible, however, the awards criteria are based on three equally considered areas: academic excellence, community service, and athletic achievement. Nominations must emanate from the office of the principal or his/her designee. This is a prestigious award and one to be actively pursued. Nomination forms must be returned early in September, 2008.

An Unusual Scholarship Opportunity At Manhattan College, Riverdale, NY there is a unique scholarship. Manhattan has been endowed with a scholarship for a student who plays the "Bag Pipes." How many times has the concept that colleges have specific scholarships for the way people spell their names entered a conversation? Well, this is a grant that is truly focused. Should you know of a budding bag piper, by all means clue he or she in to the opportunity which beckons on the shores of the Hudson River at Manhattan

College. The same college is attempting to enlarge its New England population, ergo there is financial aid available for interesting and academically achieving students. To gather more information on anyone of these financial aid opportunities contact: William Basset, Jr., Dean of Admissions and Financial Aid at Manhattan College, Riverdale, NY 10471 or call Dean Basset at (800) MC2-XCEL

The University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth MA has a program offering financial aid opportunities for accepted students in its Textile Chemistry Program. I have known students who have received a significant awarding upon entry into this program. For details call (508) 999-8605

Florida Southern College in Lakeland, FL maximizes a financial aid opportunity for students enrolling in their Citrus Studies classes presented by their Natural Science Dept. This course incorporates Citrus Production, Horticultural Science and Bill Langston, Director of Admissions says that graduates from this program are offered good jobs each spring by the citrus industry in Florida. Lindenwood College in Missouri accepts hogs in trade for tuition. Six families have swapped swine for an education that costs more than $11,000 a year. President Dannis Spellman, who sees barter as a viable way to battle a sagging economy and keep students in school, says he's open to trading anything the college can use.

An Assumption...

An assumption is being made, that all current subscribers to the College Impressions Newsletter will maintain their subscription through the school year 2006 – 2007. This assumption is being made because the address files are, at this moment, being set up for next years Email and U.S. Postal mailing. This may seem presumptuous but the organization of the mailing lists is an arduous task which will take up most of the spring and summer and it is a task that just doesn't lend itself to a last minute push. The billing for year 2006 – 2007 will be mailed during the months of June, July and September, 2005. The subscription fee will be $75.

Guidance Directors:

If you would like to have all the counselors in your department receive the College Impressions Newsletter (via Email) merely send College Impressions (via a telephone call, U.S. Mail or Email) your name –Email address and the names and Email addresses of those you want to receive the newsletter. This offer can only be extended to those who can receive the newsletter via Email messaging.

An apology

I do apologize for not sending out a report on this the CI 2007-2008 Questionnaire. The questionnaire did not attract enough responses to merit analysis.

To those who responded I shall incorporate your responses into a previous CI Questionnaire Report and send it to you if you would like to receive it or we can try again next year.

Please let me know what you would like me to do.

Think about this!

If there is a question you would like to have added to next years College Impressions Newsletter Questionnaire please send it along. Your concern may be the concern of other CI readers.

Also, how do you feel about the format of the College Impressions Newsletter? It is plain by design. I have always thought that it should be very un FLASHY and presented as a communication piece that is in house designed and information focused. It isn't meant to look commercial.

The format can be changed and I shall change it if subscribers believe it would be more appealing, readable or useful with a different and a more professional design. Please let me know how you feel about this.

HAVE A WONDERFUL SUMMER ! SEE YOU AGAIN IN AUGUST.....

Subscribers: Should you be receiving the College Impressions Newsletter via Email and:

A.) your Email address will change this fall

B.) a staff member has a change in his/her Email address

C.) you have a new counselor (s) to add to your list of subscription receivers

Please send me the changes as soon as possible.

Please use the following form to change the Email or U.S. Mail address changes in your office which may occur over the summer.

Subscribers who would like to have the College Impressions Newsletter Emailed to an entire Guidance Department/College Counseling Department, please complete this form and return it to College Impressions: 64 Shore Dr., Kingston, MA 02364 or return it via Email to collegeimp@cape.com
